

MARYJANESFARM

Sister Issue | January 2022

With some added pluck, we came up with this easy way to click (er, cluck) your way back to the farm in between magazine issues. As with any fertile hen, we prefer to accomplish our work with regularity, on a daily basis. That's why, if you sign up to join our chatroom, The Farmgirl Connection, you'll be chatting away in no time, reading about each month's Farmgirl of the Month, joining swaps, bartering and bargaining all things collectible, and celebrating things like Apple Pie Sunday and Farmgirl Jubilee. Together, we find our way back to our farmgirl roots, back to healthful eating, and starward to our dreams. A sisterly cyber hug awaits you. Subscribe, join in, and sign up today!

One can follow the sun, of course, but I have always thought that it is best to know some winter, too, so that the summer, when it arrives, is the more gratefully received.

Hello from Sister #1,
True-Blue Farmgirl MaryJane

Once again, I've been given the honor of introducing you to our Farmgirl Sister of the Year for 2022. (Thank you, Cindy Kinion, for your service as our 2021 Farmgirl Sister of the Year!) We are honored to share with you Candy Hogan (tigger9777), Oakley, CA, Farmgirl Sister #8283.

MaryJane

Farmgirl Sister of the Year 2022

QUESTION: Tell us a little about your background and when and how you discovered MaryJanesFarm and the Sisterhood.

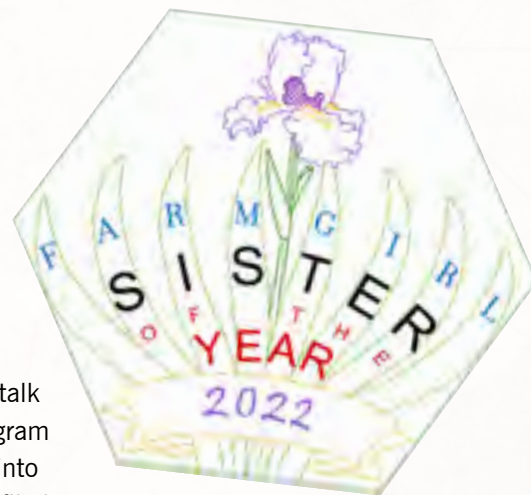

ANSWER: Hello everyone! My name is Candy Hogan and I live in Oakley, California. I am a mother of three and grandmother to three. My husband of 39 years and I live on our small ranch, where we raise llamas, alpacas, seasonal cattle, pigs, sheep, goats, and various small animals. I have been involved in many youth organizations: Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts (25+ years), 4-H (30 years), and I am the Danville Grange Master. My volunteer roles total 23 this year, so they keep me very busy. I am retired due to disability, but I worked in the home health-care field and hospice care. During the two years of the pandemic, I have been taking online college courses through Harvard, Yale, Stanford, and UC Berkeley. Next up are Princeton, Oxford, Cambridge, and Notre Dame.

CANDY HOGAN

QUESTION: Tell us about the farmgirl chapter you started and why you started it.

ANSWER: I found out about MaryJanesFarm through my close friend, Rea (Farmgirl Sister #8284). She would talk about the magazine and mention the program until finally one day, I said, "Let me look into it." The rest is history. In two days, I had filed the Brentwood Farm Girl Chapter, ordered the badge book, and Rea set to work setting up our Facebook page. In one week, we had four sisters signed up. We hold monthly Zoom meetings, so it doesn't matter where you live, you can join in with us during the computer meetings. Being the first Chapter Leader, I also set up our tea party, field trips to Apple Hill in El Dorado, California, and a local pumpkin patch; hosted stargazing parties; and made members homemade gifts throughout the year.

QUESTION: What made you decide to start earning Merit Badges?

ANSWER: The first thing I wanted to do after signing up was to earn a badge to see how it all worked so I could share with the other members how to apply for a badge and what happens once you earn it, the options you have for displaying badges, the seven categories of badges, how to become a Farmgirl Legend, and just dive into the program to learn as much as possible to share it with our new group.

QUESTION: What was the first Merit Badge you earned? How many have you earned so far?

ANSWER: The first merit badge I earned was Crochet, Beginner Level. Right now, I have 270 badges, with 72 at expert level. Our Chapter group is super excited to see the new badges released in January 2022. I am really hoping for a MaryJane Better Butter Badge.

QUESTION: You raise llamas and alpacas; what's a typical day like caring for your animals?

ANSWER: A typical day on the ranch starts with barn chores. We feed the animals, check all the water troughs and clean up as needed. Seasonally, we might be doing vaccinations, sheering, breeding programs, birthing, breaking/training, or showing animals at fairs. Each animal species needs its own care program. The llamas and alpacas are easy keepers, gentle on fences, great around the other animals, help guard on the property, and I can raise 10 for the cost of one horse.

QUESTION: What traditions have been passed down in your family?

ANSWER: I don't have a lot of traditions passed down in my family because my mom died when I was young, and my dad died when I was 19. Two things I would consider a tradition I do every year are Christmas cards (because I can remember my mom sitting up late at night, listening to her vinyl records, writing out her cards), and making fudge from a recipe passed down for generations. The recipe is special because my grandma's sister worked for See's Candies in the 1920s, and they don't make this original recipe anymore.

QUESTION: What are three things that show up most on your to-do list?

ANSWER: I definitely have a to-do list every day. Always first on the list is the care of the animals; followed by business-related topics such as contracts, document forms, correspondence, e-mails, phone calls, etc.; and last on the list is hopefully something fun to do or a badge I am working on.

QUESTION: Do you have a favorite book? How about a favorite movie? What type of music suits you best?

ANSWER: My favorite books growing up were the series for Nancy Drew, Cherry Ames, and the Bobbsey Twins, and as an adult, I read books for college classes and the books for various MaryJaneseFarm badges. The movies I watch over and over are Murphy's Romance with Sally Field and James Gardner, the series for Harry Potter, Jurassic Park, National Treasure, and ANY Hallmark Christmas movies. The best type of music for me is Country and Rock. ●

CLEANING UP: Living Zero Waste*

Beginner Level

- Complete the Path to Zero Waste Merit Badge.
- What are the 5 Rs of zero waste?
- What are ways you can practice each of the 5 Rs?

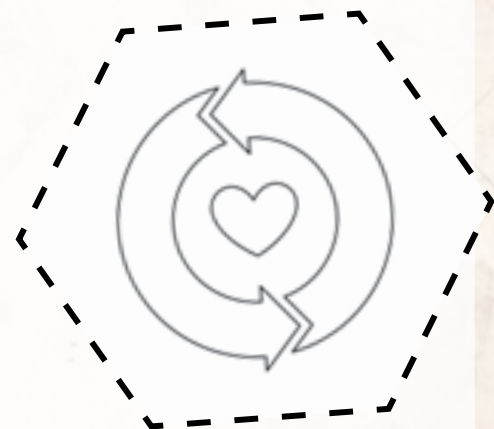

Intermediate Level

- In the Intermediate Level of the Path to Zero Waste Merit Badge, you performed a waste audit and named three significant things you learned. Enact solutions for reducing your waste in each area you identified. To work on making these solutions permanent, continue to practice these solutions for one month.
- When shopping for material goods, make secondhand/thrift stores your first choice, wherever possible and/or feasible. Before purchasing an item, consider the longevity of the product, and if it's something you truly need. Is this item built to last or able to be repaired? Is it recyclable/compostable/biodegradable?
- Whenever parting with material goods, consider the best ways to do so (some examples include clothing exchanges with friends, donating to a local cause or secondhand store, recycling or repurposing old kitchen containers, and so on). Get creative with it!

Expert Level

- Single-use items are quite common these days, from takeaway beverage cups, to plastic bags, to menstrual products, to grocery packaging. Identify four single-use products you use in your daily life and replace them with reusable, recyclable, or compostable alternatives.
- While the initial investment of replacing single-use items can be higher, over time, reusable alternatives can save money. Calculate the true cost of the four items you replace. For example, if you replaced buying bottled water with a water filtration pitcher or a reusable water bottle (or both), how much will you save over the lifespan of the filter or reusable bottle?
- Recycle and compost as much as possible and/or feasible.
- Share what you've learned with at least two friends or neighbors.

*Please note, in order to apply for any level of this badge, you must have earned all three levels of the Path to Zero Waste Merit Badge in Cleaning Up.

FARM KITCHEN: MaryJane's Better Butter

Beginner Level

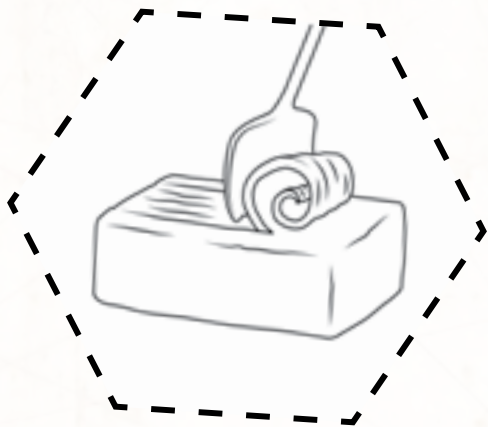

- Before you dive in, learn about the best sanitary practices for handling cream and butter. What is the shelf life of homemade butter, and what is the best way to store it in the short and long term?
- Research the history of butter. What are two fun facts you learned?
- Learn about the different methods for making butter at home. Which one appeals to you the most? (MaryJane's book, Milk Cow Kitchen, contains information on common methods, as well as factual tidbits and recipes for making delicious butter at home.)

Intermediate Level

- When you make butter, cream is agitated until the fat solids separate from the liquid. This liquid (sometimes referred to as buttermilk or whey) has many uses in the home kitchen. What are some ways you can use the leftover liquid?
- Why is washing and kneading butter important? How do you know when your homemade butter has been sufficiently washed and kneaded?
- What is the difference between sweet cream butter and cultured butter?
- Now that you've done your due diligence, whip up a batch of butter. How did it turn out? What did you learn about the process?

Expert Level

- Put your homemade butter to work in the kitchen. Use it in three different recipes, such as compound butter (recipes can be found in MaryJane's book, Milk Cow Kitchen), in roux for gravy or sauce, in a batch of cookies, or challenge yourself and learn how to make laminated dough.
- Share what you've learned on the Farmgirl Connection or with two friends.

GARDEN GATE: Permaculture

Beginner Level

- What is permaculture?
- What is a closed-loop system?
- How can instituting permaculture practices be beneficial to your home garden?
- Research common permaculture methods, such as lasagna gardening, Hügelkultur, and rotational grazing.

Intermediate Level

- What do guilds in permaculture refer to? Why are they important?
- Where can you apply some of the ideas and techniques you've researched in your home garden or yard?
- Now that you've identified an area where you can institute some permaculture practices, develop a plan and go for it!
- How did it turn out? What did you learn in the process?

Expert Level

- Look to apply what you've learned about permaculture to a larger scale by researching the landscaping practices in your town or city. Is there a public space that could benefit from employing permaculture practices?
- If there is a public space you think would benefit from permaculture practices, get involved! Go to city council meetings and lobby for it to happen at the public space you've identified.
- If you're unable to identify a nearby public space that would benefit, do you have a neighbor you can share what you've learned with and help them set up some practices that would benefit their landscape?

OUTPOST: Orienteering

Beginner Level

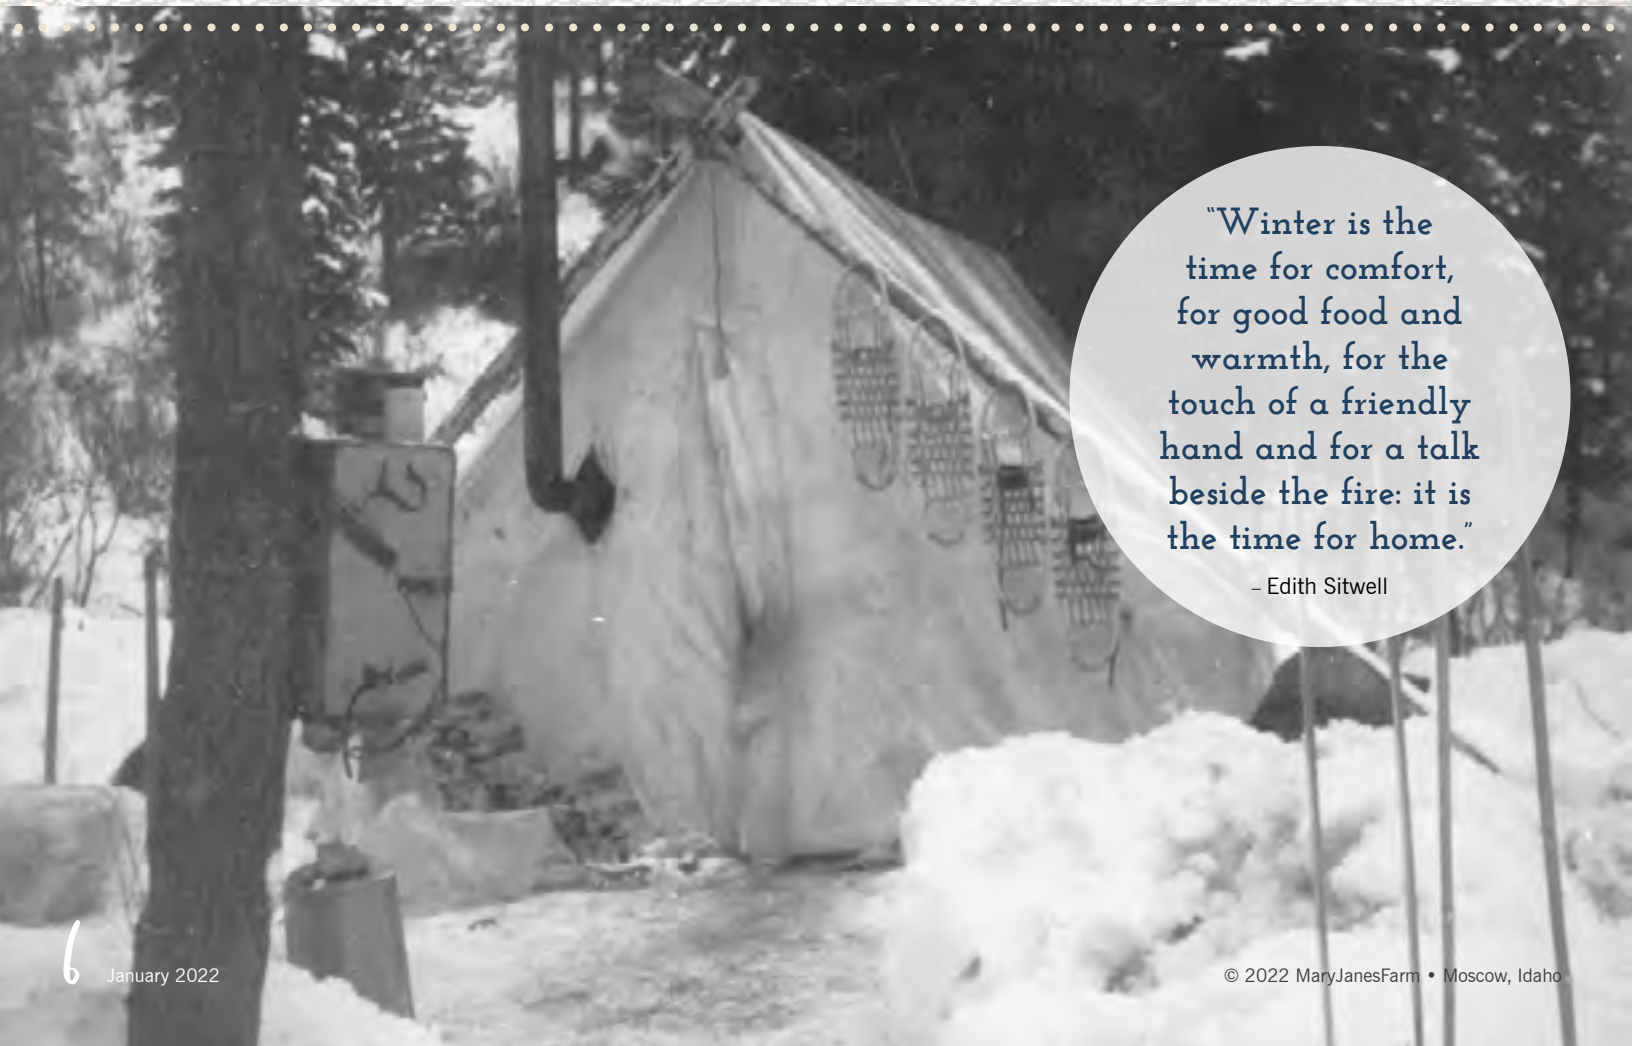

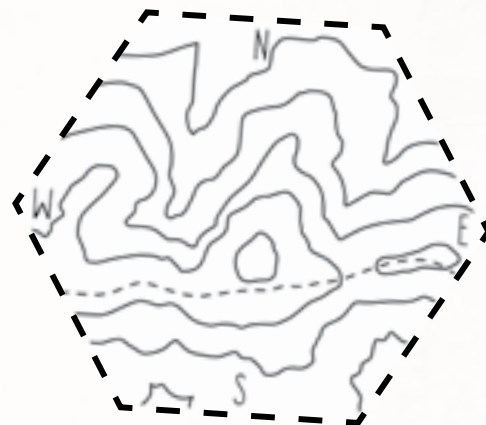

- Learn about orienteering. A good place to start is OrienteeringUSA.org.
- What are a few of the basics you learned?
- Make a list of gear you'll need for a successful orienteering adventure.

Intermediate Level

- Are there any orienteering clubs in your area? If you're unsure where to start, use the club search function on OrienteeringUSA.org.
- If joining a club interests you, find out when their next event/meeting is and what it takes to participate.
- If you'd rather be independent, plan an orienteering event for yourself and at least two people and share some of the details of your plan.

Expert Level

- Gear up and get out there! Attend a club orienteering event or make the one you planned official.
- How did it go? Will you continue the sport in the future? If so, share something important that you learned, and what you might do differently next time.

“Winter is the time for comfort, for good food and warmth, for the touch of a friendly hand and for a talk beside the fire: it is the time for home.”

Merit Badge Jewelry

Farmgirl sisters and their children have earned over 10,886 merit badges to date (see a complete list of our Merit Badge Awardees at FarmgirlSisterhood.org). Not only are their meritorious accomplishments given public accolades here in the Sister Issue and on our chatroom, but they're also given a link to a printable 4-inch badge specific to every accomplishment. (Some farmgirls have even earned the "sharpshooter" designation for earning more than 200 badges!) Typically printed on muslin and then stitched to jackets or shoulder bags, made into wall hangings, or sometimes quilts, I'm thinking there might be other sisters, like me, who want to turn their badge insignias into necklaces, bracelets, chest medals, ring or earring signets, or even aglets and stampede straps!

Here's how I did it. Using a few basic jewelry tools, the Internet, and a visit to my local craft store, I took my badges (that arrive in an e-mail when earned/approved) and sized them down. You can size your badges yourself using this step-by-step process, or take your jpeg files to your local copy shop and have them do it for you. If you have other ideas on how you like to resize and color your badges, feel free to share your ideas on our Farmgirl Connection™ Chatroom.

1. Download your jpeg badge file, right-click (PC) or command-click (Mac) the image, then choose "Save Picture As..." or "Save Image As..." Save them to your computer somewhere you can find them again (like the desktop).
2. My design team knew how to color them on the computer using Paint or Photoshop, but when left to my own devices, colored pencils worked just fine. I left many of mine black and white, aiming for that vintage, somewhat industrial, frugal, farmish look.
3. Open Microsoft Word.
4. Click "Insert," "Picture," "From File," and select the badge image to insert.
5. Select one of the corners of the badge image. Using Word's rulers for size reference (under toolbars), resize your badge the desired amount by clicking, holding, and dragging.
6. If you make a mistake while resizing, simply hit the "Reset Picture" button on the picture editing toolbar and start over ("View," "Toolbars," "Picture").
7. To make a circle cutting template around your badge you will need to again select "View," "Toolbars," "Drawing." Select the oval shape, and while holding your shift key down, drag until the circle is the correct size for your badge. Click the paint bucket on the drawing toolbar while your circle is selected, and click "no fill" to make your badge visible through the circle.
9. Print and enjoy!

For Scrabble tiles, I found the best quality and most reliable gear on Etsy. First, I brushed the paper badge with a thin layer of matte-finish Mod Podge to seal the paper, then I let it dry. You will use Mod Podge for all of these jewelry crafting projects; it works as both a glue and a sealer. Next I cut out my paper badge insignia and brushed the blank side of the Scrabble tile with Mod Podge and placed the paper badge onto it, gently working out any air bubbles with my bone folder (find at your local craft store.) After it dried, I placed a self-adhesive square epoxy dome on top of the badge insignia and used a bone folder to remove the air bubbles. Next, I glued a metal bail (see left) on the lettered side using a 24-hour clear epoxy. Finally, I attached it to my chain necklace using a jump ring.

Bone Folder

For smaller, round bezel cups (my favorite), I turned to scrapbooking supplies for the most economical source. Idea-ology™ “Type Charms” (the stickers that come in the package look like typewriter keys, but I used my badge insignias instead) are sold in packages of 16 that include self-adhesive round epoxy domes that insert into each cup and sell for around $8 (50¢ each). Available at Michael's or online here.

I think the 1/2” diameter size of this charm is good because of the price and availability. Soon, we’ll all be charming! (You can go a more expensive route using bezel cups made from sterling silver and filled with liquid clear casting epoxy. You can purchase supplies here, or Google “sterling bezel cups.”)

Look to Jill Schwartz for a line of jewelry embellishments for adding non-badge charms to your necklace. I used a variety of charms from her line, as well as Industrial Chic, Lost & Found, Pearls & Pumps, Bella Boho, Forged, Blue Moon, and Black Lace. If you haven't discovered the jewelry aisle in your local craft store yet, head on out. There may be other lines or new lines available online or in stores near you.

Picking through the above lines of jewelry makings, I also Mod Podged my badge insignias onto any flat surface I could find, adjusting the size accordingly. I even used a locket from the Industrial Chic line for my main hexagonal Sisterhood Badge (inside are photos of my grandchildren). Note the cool safety pins you can buy that don't have the bottom double curl.

Or buy a button-making machine.

Merit Badge Buttons

Industrial Chic's ring blank didn't come with a self-adhesive resin dome, so I picked up some EasyCast to make my own. First, I followed the Mod Podge steps and gave the badge an extra coat to protect it from losing color and let it dry. I chose a well-ventilated area and covered the surface I was working on with wax paper. Next, I put on gloves and eye protection. Following the EasyCast instructions that come with the kit, I mixed my EasyCast and poured it into a squeezable condiment bottle with a spout (like a mustard container). I put the ring upright in a vice and gently squeezed the EasyCast onto my "bee kind to mother earth" badge that was nestled inside. (If you don't have a vise, you could use a bowl of uncooked rice or make jigs out of foam-core board or styrofoam.) Lastly, I covered the ring with a box while the EasyCast was hardening to protect it and followed the EasyCast instructions for proper clean up.

Big welcome to our new and renewing Sisterhood members!

Farmgirl BOOK CLUB

FEB/MAR: The Masks We Wear

Welcome to the Farmgirl Book Club! If this is your first visit, here's how it works ... In each issue of MaryJanesFarm, we suggest several new books, usually coinciding with a different theme and always the kinds of reads that are fun to share and discuss. You pick whichever one tickles your fancy—whether that's all of them, or just one, or something that's not on the list at all! Then we all get together at Facebook.com/groups/FarmgirlBookClub to talk about what we're reading.

Dear Farmgirl Book Club Sisters,

For a number of reasons, I've found myself thinking a lot about masks lately. Not just the type the CDC talks about, but the other kinds that exist as well. In this issue's book club, each of the novels we're discussing plays with this concept of masks or disguises in a different way. Some may be metaphorical—a way of cloaking emotions, putting a barrier between oneself and the world. Others may be worn to change one's appearance or conceal one's real identity. They can be assumed to provide protection, to cross social barriers, to avoid judgment, to deceive, or simply just for fun. These novels explore the many ways and reasons why people disguise themselves from the world—or sometimes, even themselves.

Of course, it's impossible to say the word "masks" without evoking the very literal face coverings we've become all too familiar with over the past two years. Those are on my mind, too, especially since I'm getting ready to go on a book tour for my fifth novel, The Saints of Swallow Hill, that will have me traveling for launch events and book signings throughout seven or eight states during the next couple of months (unless there are changes in the CDC recommendations on public gatherings).

I'm so excited to hit the road, but it's hard to know what to expect. I find myself trying to imagine what it will be like to speak with a group of readers while many of our smiles are covered. Will I be able to recognize old friends if I can't see their whole faces? Will it be harder to understand people when we can't watch each other's mouths move? This will be a different experience indeed, but what really matters is something that doesn't change: We are all connected—no matter what masks we wear—by our shared love of books.

As I visit different towns and cities on this tour, I'm really looking forward to gathering with fellow book lovers, catching up with old friends and new readers, and most of all, hopefully getting the chance to see some of you, my Farmgirl Sisters! You can check out the events schedule at DonnaEverhart.com, and if it looks like I might be coming to a bookstore or library near you, I really hope you'll consider stopping by. It would be such a treat to meet you in person at last! In the meantime, come join us online for the Farmgirl Book Club at Facebook.com/groups/FarmgirlBookClub as we read and discuss these stories about masks, disguises, and hidden identities ...

Happy reading,

Donna Everhart
Farmgirl Sister #7913

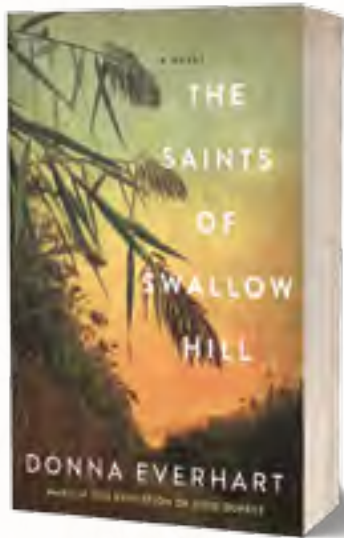

The Spanish Daughter

by Lorena Hughes

Puri is a young chocolatier living in 1920 Spain when she learns her estranged father has died and bequeathed her a cacao plantation in Ecuador. On the voyage across the Atlantic to claim this inheritance, a mercenary targeting Puri accidentally murders her husband, and she knows whoever sent him most be allowed to believe she's the one who's been killed. So when she finally arrives at her father's lush plantation in Ecuador's "birthplace of cacao" and meets her father's other family—her half-siblings now squabbling over the estate—she does so disguised as her late husband. While Puri, shielded by her assumed identity, searches for clues to which greedy half-sibling was responsible for sending the mercenary, she learns she's not the only one hiding behind a façade. There's the seemingly perfect marriage her beautiful half-sister uses to maintain her social status; the emotions her half-brother, a priest, hides behind his vestments and clerical collar; the ambition her other sister cloaks in stony silence. And most of all, the relationship her father long concealed that now threatens to destroy the entire family ...

The Saints of Swallow Hill

by Donna Everhart

During the Great Depression, in isolated labor camps buried deep in the vast pine forests of the American South, destitute workers performed the backbreaking, dangerous work of harvesting sap and processing it into turpentine. Conditions in these camps were wretched, but for the desperate and unemployed, they were a chance at survival. It's to one such camp in Georgia where Rae Lynn Cobb flees after her husband's death, disguised as a man in order to get a job. At first, "Ray" manages to carry off her deception, aided by the fact that everyone at Swallow Hill has something to hide—or hide from—whether it's the harsh reality beyond the forest, their reasons for taking such dangerous work, the things they've seen, or their own evil nature. But her position becomes increasingly precarious, even as another worker, a reformed ladies' man named Del Reese, attempts to shield her from their sadistic boss ...

A Reason for Hope

by Kristin von Kreisler

Bookmobile librarian Tessa Jordan's simple life is shockingly upended after a first date with Nick, a man whose status as a respected community leader belies the predatory person he really is.

Tessa accuses him of assault, but when she learns the prosecutor has decided there isn't enough evidence to move the case forward, she finds herself overwhelmed with rage. Her only solace becomes a yellow lab named Hope, a courthouse dog who's trained to comfort victims throughout the judicial process. Masks are a running theme throughout this novel: Tessa covers her fear and shame with anger as a means of self-protection; Nick cloaks the menacing person he really is; and Will, Hope's handler, uses his professionalism to create a barrier so he doesn't get too familiar with Tessa. But it's Hope who, with the wisdom only dogs have, always sees behind these masks.

The Memory Quilt

by Lenora Worth

What if, when the mask comes off, even you don't recognize the person behind it? On the shores of Lake Erie, an Amish woman named Abigail finds an unconscious, half-drowned, gravely injured man and begins nursing him back to health. Even as his strength returns, his memories remain completely lost, so Abigail calls him Jonah because he was swallowed and spit back by the sea. As the two start falling for one another, everything in Abigail's heart tells her he's a good man, even if he begins experiencing brief flashes of shattered memories that hint at a dangerous past.

She has him describe these visions so she can sew them into blocks of fabric, stitching a quilt of his memories. But as they piece together the truth of his past, is the picture they see who Jonah really is? Or is his true self this person he's become? Can he choose who he is if his memory returns?

SOLO Getaways

What's a girl craving her solo getaway to do?

I got out a pry bar.

The first thing I did to keep emergency well, I gave her a sobot was to give her a name, an identity. I decided to name her after a woman who could keep me inspired, a garden angel who could be with me when the going got tough.

I thought of Mary Olive, who lamously said:

“I want to think again of dangerous and noble things. I want to be light and frolicsome. I want to be improbable, beautiful, and afraid of nothing as though I had wings.”

Yes, wings.

I named her Amelia after Amelia Earhart, the Kansas girl who became the first woman to fly solo over the Atlantic Ocean in 1932. I bought a wooden propeller and a oak chair with an aluminum “propeller” base. I collected photos of Amelia and I read her 1937 biography, East to the Dawn.

I borrowed them after the flight, the 2342 named by Bing Madson, African bush pilot and history-making aviator.

“She has written so well, and marvelously well, that I was completely astounded at myself as a writer. I felt that I was simply a carpenter with words, picking up whatever was furnished on the job and nailing them together and sometimes nailing an okay job. But she can write rings around all of us who consider ourselves as writers ... I really is a bloody wonderful book.”

—Ernest Hemingway

Who doesn't daydream about a getaway? Time alone. Simple meals. Naps. Books. Music. A campfire and a place to live. A bed all to yourself. A notebook. One pillow, one bowl, one fork, one spoon.

Six years ago, I bought my daydream into focus when I found a two-door 1957 Yellowstone 23-foot travel trailer for sale.

I bought it right on time and had it delivered. Gladly with excitement, I stepped inside. Most, I could travel most. I'd asked about water damage and was told, “None whatsoever.”

I went on the ground for historical photos of other women pilots and discovered several largely unused photos posing with some of the first airplanes ever built. So yeah, wrong, as is often the case, but still with dreams, a whole lotta gumption, and wings.

Solo. Wings. Aluminum. I was all in.

Merit Badge Planner

Here 'tis—perfect for life during quarantine or starting the new year off on the right foot. Our Farmgirl Sisterhood Merit Badge Planner features a descriptive page for every level of badge (all 144 of them!). Even though it contains a goals calendar, it's designed to work around your schedule. With inspirational sayings scattered throughout, it's a farmgirl must-have for keeping track of badges you've earned and badges you hope to earn. With plenty of space given to "notes," it's fold-back cover makes for easy writing, especially while on-the-go. Each section is clearly labeled with cardstock tabs to make locating badges a breeze. Sisterhood & Farmerette Merit Badge Awardees

Jan 1, 2021 to Dec 31, 2021

This year was a fantastic year for Merit Badges, and it was, without a doubt our busiest year yet! Many sisters earned badges in the double digits, and a handful of enthusiastic ladies earned over 100 badges! As such, we'd like to extend a brief callout to our top earners—way to go!

Candy Hogan (Tigger9777, #8283, Farmgirl Sister of the Year 2022) earned 279 Merit Badges.

Allison Clark (Allison Clark, #8292) earned 258 Merit Badges.

Cindy Kinion (AussieChick, #6058, Farmgirl Sister of the Year 2021) earned 161 Merit Badges.

Carrie Williams (Carrie W, #147, Farmgirl Sister of the Year 2009) earned 111 Merit Badges.

Rea Nakanishi (Lacey, #8284) earned 103 Merit Badges.

What's
a Farmerette?

Farmerettes are young farmgirls-in-training between the ages 14–18. They can earn the same Merit Badges as adult Sisters, so long as there is a Farmgirl Sisterhood member nearby to work with them. Click here to find out more.

What's
a Young Cultivator?

Young Cultivators are girls and boys between the ages 6 and 13. They can work with Farmgirl Sisterhood members to earn badges, but have their own unique program. Click here to find out more.
